Help Shape the Future of Robotics

The Actuate Summit presented by Foxglove is a one-day event designed to bring together ~300 of the brightest minds in the robotics development industry to share their insights, experiences, and ideas on the latest trends in robotics development to help propel the broader robotics industry toward commercialization.

Robotics will have a massive positive impact on the world economy and global human productivity over the coming decade. We're thrilled for this future! We're building powerful open source and commercial tools to accelerate it and we want you to come and join us, along with a room full of your peers and target audience, in a community that's dedicated to robotics developers and the advancement of robotics development.

This year's agenda is full of exciting presentations, tutorials, and insightful panel discussions, along with an exciting happy hour to network with everyone in attendance.
